

Homework 5

Mad Libs

Create a webpage with forms to allow for both these mad libs.

- A user should have to register to use the site.
- The user will need to fill in all fields to get a story.
- The entries must meet some requirement.
 - Maybe more than one letter, if asking for a number, it must be a number. And where else you think it would make sense.
- Please store the results of the user's response in a database.
 - So that when a user comes back to your website, they can see their previous mad lib story's or delete a select story. This can be as a login with a username and password or at a minimum by putting in their email/username.
 - They should only see their stories when logged back in.
- Each User should be able to do the mad lib over and over storing different versions

The below shows the order and the blanks in the story. When creating your form, use the below as reference.
